

MENKEN CRITICISES CHAMP CLARK AGAIN

Refers to Speaker as "Great Reactionary" Associated With "Loose Wits."

BRYAN IN LATTER CLASS

Former President of Security League Put on Grill by Congress Committee.

The Congressional committee which was appointed to examine the financial affairs of the National Security League in connection with the league's opposition of Congressmen, took up a few other subjects yesterday in the Bar Association Building with S. Stanwood Menken, former president and organizer of the league, in the witness chair.

Members were inquiring into Mr. Menken's opinions on the questions of unemployment insurance, old age pensions, how much Mr. Menken paid for his telephone, and whether he gave them his holidays as the Government does, his views on the conservation of natural resources, a Second Lieutenant's pay, the wage scale of the French army as compared to the American, and whether there should be a Secretary of Education in the National Cabinet.

gress. Mr. Menken said he would give the facts, painful as it might be to him. He thought most Congressmen were naturally patriotic and gave the best service they could to their country within the limited scope of their vision.

Against Profiteers.

tempted to find out if any contributions to the National Security League were interested in the manufacture of munitions so that they might benefit from preparedness. Mr. Menken said that the rules of the league were distinctly against contributions from anybody with a war profiteering taint, but admitted out his showing. R. Chairman Johnson had Mr. Menken give the names of a few contributors.

Joseph H. Choate, T. De Witt Taylor, T. Coleman du Pont, J. R. De Lamar, Nicholas J. Brady, Henry C. Pratt, William K. Vanderbilt, Arthur C. Carter, James, Emerson McMillan and J. P. Morgan were a few of them. J. P. Morgan & Co. had not contributed, anything, for fear Emma foolishly had

plained, but the senior partner of the firm had done so to the extent of $250,000. John D. Rockefeller gave $250,000, H. H. Rogers $1,000. Eveready, Charles Clarence H. Mackay, J. Kennedy Tool and Bernard M. Baruch were others. Mr. Hearst did not contribute anything except reportorial and editorial support, Mr. Menken said.

"Quite sure of that?" asked Mr. Johnson.

"Yes," said Mr. Menken, and the committee dug up the fact that the company had contributed $100. Mr. Menken explained that was probably for a life membership, which he intimated was a little thing.

The committee also was curious to know if Mr. Menken had been influenced in his preparedness campaign by anything that had been said or done to him on his last trip to England and France, when he heard speeches on the war in the British Parliament. Mr. Menken said he came away from Europe without a single message to the American people being delivered to him.

connection with preparedness as a general reactionary, and said he didn't like Clark's association with "Bryan and the other loose wits." It was pointed out that on the league test vote list Mr. Clark had been right six times and wrong twice.

Representative Saunders wanted McMenken to elucidate his criticism that the Government of the last two years had been Government by dictation, as he explained that "the President's assurance on Congress made possible the enactment of the army bill, the navy bill

PHONE CALL CLUE
IN KNAPP MYSTERY

Police Believe Slayer Followed Aged Victim.

The murder of Charles H. Keady, real estate owner, who was shot to death Wednesday in the damaged seven-story building which belonged to him at 80 Bedford street, a half a dozen gold pins had been torn from his neck scarf. Pawnshops all over town were being watched in case an effort to saloon in the neighborhood was telephoned for a glazier to cover up. The police believe his a salient has been some one who overheard the escape and who telephoned him after he telephoned and they have been looking for him since his escape.

As a result of this phase of investigation, the pollen were a place little reliance upon the by Mrs. Florence Childs of the

The police committee (C. J. 1956)

Americanization Dinner-Tasnight
Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, will outline a plan for the Americanization of foreign residents at a dinner to-night at the Hotel May.

The Chicago-based and nationally known head of the National American Woman's Committee, George Goring Harbo, and Felix M. Washington, are think and women from all over the country will attend. Through an error, Harbo, named yesterday that the dinner was to take place tonight.